Awarua Communications Museum – 1276 Bluff Highway  www.awaruamuseum.co.nz

The Museum provides an opportunity for exploring both the technology and history of New Zealand's communications from early telegraph and radio days through to the modern era. A purpose-built 'picture palace' and its wide collection of heritage film provides both entertaining and educational material.

The museum's technology collection displays the evolution of the fascinating world of wired, radio and digital communications.

The museum is available for pre-arranged group visits - arrange these visits with the Group Visit Coordinator. The museum is open to the public on Sundays from 11am to 3pm.

For group visits: Group Visit Coordinator: Brendon Sparks  0274 237 465

Where we are

The Museum is located on the historic site of Awarua Radio Station at 1276 Bluff Highway, halfway between Invercargill and Bluff, on SH1.

To find the Museum, exit the Bluff Highway (SH1) at the brick gateway, shown in the banner at the top of this page, and drive past the three heritage Bavarian-style cottages. The Museum is the next building on the right-hand side just before a cattle stop. Please do not drive further down the road because it is private property.
